BIOGRAPHICAL/HISTORICAL NOTE

Judge Thomas Butler (1785-1847), born in Pennsylvania moved to Pinckneyville, Mississippi Territory in 1809. An attorney, Butler worked for many of the merchants in Southwest Mississippi and in the Feliciana Parishes of Louisiana. In 1813, he was appointed judge of the Louisiana Third District Court after moving to West Feliciana Parish near St. Francisville and later was elected to the United States Congress, serving as a representative from 1818 to 1821. Butler was a Louisiana gubernatorial candidate twice in the 1820s and lost both elections.

In the late 1830s, he began to develop sugar plantations in Terrebonne Parish. Butler's interests extended also to higher education, and he served as president of the Board of Trustees of the Louisiana College at Jackson, Louisiana. He was also a member of the Louisiana Historical Society.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

Family papers pertain primarily to household and business finances and include correspondence, bills, receipts, accounts, bills of lading, stock certificates, and banking papers. The materials reflect the plantation economy in the antebellum and postwar periods. The twentieth-century financial papers consist primarily of bank accounts and stock interests.

Civil War papers include Confederate military orders and other official papers. Other papers are the Randolph family papers (1804-1938) and letters received by Mary Louisa Stirling (1833-1861) concerning family and social matters.
